

The TAM on the slide

Built top-down: an analyst's market size $\times$ an assumed share. Operators warn it can overstate the real opportunity 3–10x, and territories, quotas and hiring plans get built on it.

Source: SaaSCEO, "How to calculate TAM" (operator rule of thumb, not a controlled study).

A list you rebuild from your wins

- 1 Seed with closed-won
~10 accounts you actually won
- 2 Fingerprint
what the winners share: size, stack, business model
- 3 Lookalikes
Clay clusters from up to 15,000 seed accounts
- 4 Mine filters, then pull turn the similarity into a repeatable query
- 5 AI-qualify + verify the live site
an agent scores good-fit vs bad-fit
- 6 Keep it live
Clay Audiences re-scores the segment as data changes

Terminal rail: the Clay CLI lets an agent rerun steps 1–6 on demand. It reads Tables and can create, edit and publish Workflows.

Sources: Growth Engine X coldoutboundskills (list-expander); Octave on Clay Lookalikes; Clay Docs (Audiences, API/CLI).

Everyone went after the live list

- MAR 19
Apollo acquires Pocus (product-usage signals)
- MAR 25
Clay Audiences launches as an Enterprise beta
- JUN 30
HubSpot agrees to acquire Warmly (intent data)
- JUL 2
Zoom agrees to acquire Common Room (closed in July)
- JUL 9
Clay API + CLI, and ZoomInfo's GTM.AI CLI, ship the same day
- SEP 11
Salesforce announces Agentforce AI Skills + the Hunter outbound agent
- OCT 8
Sculpt, SF: "How To Build a Perfect TAM With Audiences and the Clay CLI"

● filled = acquisition ○ hollow = product launch

Sources: Built In; Clay blog; Dealroom; Zoom; Clay community; ZoomInfo IR; Salesforce; sculpt.clay.com.

Where a reverse-engineered list can break

CIRCULARITY

Does it ever find the segment you haven't won yet?

TOO LIVE

Segments re-score continuously

Changes write back to the CRM

Reps see accounts they already worked

Where's the line between fresh and noisy?

When the list maintains itself, the human's job moves up a layer: defining the definition, and auditing it.

Open questions for the room, not verdicts.

The room, hour by hour

5:30

Doors

Clay Club NY, hosted by Andreas Wernicke (Snowball Consult)

6:00

Two years of the Clay community

Munnawar Hashim, Siya Verma, Shriya Nevatia, Andreas Wernicke

6:15

Building Perfect Lists with Audiences and the Clay CLI

Eric Nowoslawski, Growth Engine X: the Sculpt talk, a week early

6:45

Small-group debrief

each table brings its top question

7:00

Q&A with Eric

then networking until 8:00

Source: Clay in NYC event page (Luma), run of show.